

Help protect children in high-risk environments

At Christmas we traditionally focus on the birth of Christ, the babe in the manger.

Did you know though that Christmas actually runs through to 6 January, or Twelfth Night? It's also known as Epiphany, when Christ is revealed to the Wise Men.

Straight after this, we encounter the 'Flight into Egypt' and the 'Massacre of the Innocents' stories, where Mary and Joseph escape the wrath of King Herod and have to flee to Egypt to safeguard Jesus' life.

Fast-forward 2,000 years and this is still happening to children today. We believe it's high time they were protected.

And the good news is that you can help protect them.

At Christmas, we remember that Jesus came to reach out to the most vulnerable, and He calls us to do the same.
